

Elizabeth Rasmussen is excited to join Better Boundaries as the new Executive Director, where she is dedicated to independent and transparent political processes that prioritize voters. She brings a strong background in public policy, community engagement, and organizational leadership, along with a passion for fair and accountable government.

Before joining Better Boundaries, Elizabeth worked as a consultant at Deloitte, partnering with federal and state agencies to implement policies focused on climate, natural resources, and energy. From 2018 to 2022, she played a key role in multiple political campaigns across Utah and spent two years on Senator Mitt Romney's staff in Washington, DC. In 2023, she ran for Utah Senate, an experience that strengthened her commitment to community-driven leadership and forged lasting relationships across the state.

Elizabeth also serves as a board member for Utah Women Run, an organization focused on helping women engage in the political process. She holds a B.A. in American Studies from Brigham Young University.

A Utah native, Elizabeth loves traveling across Utah and beyond to explore beautiful landscapes. Whether it's hiking, mountain biking, or camping, she takes every opportunity to spend time outdoors with her spouse, Hunter, and their two dogs, Murphy and Ranger.
